A Song To Barringer

Atop the hill thy old walls stand
And, steadfast, watch the years march by;
The great third in a mighty band,
Proud of thy name and honor high.

Strong old walls, this be my plea—
Let your firmness live in me.

Beside thee, spires point on high,
Now cloaked in mist, now etched in sun.
A bright lake—fragment of the sky,
Fields of light and shadow spun.

Lake and spires, this be my plea—
Let your beauty live in me.

Youth and hope march in thy halls,
Glad-given friendship lights the way.
The world is brought within thy walls;
We are the sculptors; life, our clay.

High school days, this be my plea—
Forever leave your joy in me.

This book has already been formally dedicated to the High Schools of America and to Barringer, but actually, in our hearts, it is fondly dedicated to

LURA M. BRIGGS

who has given to us more than was hers to give, whose guiding spirit has turned discouragement into inspiration, and who has taught us to make every obstacle another step toward the top.

Editorial

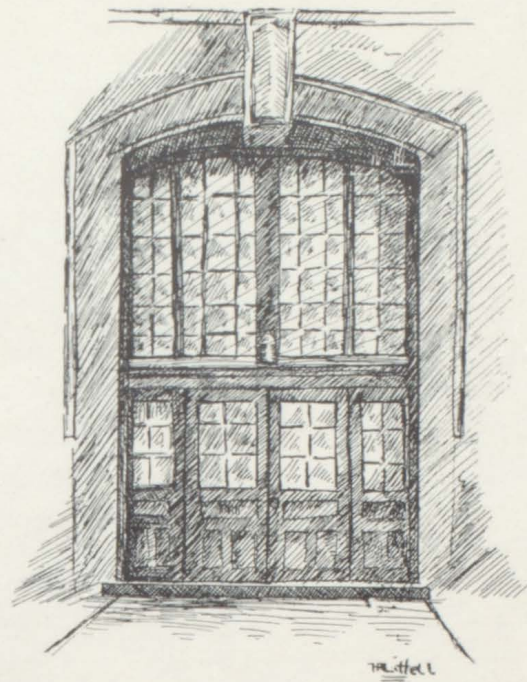

THE guiding thought in the preparation of this, our Athenaeum, has been the broad scope of the modern high school as compared with the old. While the "storied halls of Barringer" mellow with age and their atmosphere of beautiful and romantic tradition continues to inspire us, we pay tribute to a newer and broader institution.

For, it is a new Barringer. From the time of its founding as Newark High, until today, its physical growth and cultural development have been steady. Today, our ninety-seven-year-old Barringer is an outstanding example of the rapid progress made in general by the high schools of the United States during the past hundred years. Truly a "Century of Progress."

Our lives here have been full and satisfactory, delving as they have, into a comprehensive field of studies linked with many extra activities. Yes, we have lived our four years here,—years alive with the zest of having been a vital part of a typically modern high school; years crowned with the pride of having participated in so many student organizations.

Now we are graduating. We are leaving our beloved Barringer,—regretfully, to be sure, yet consoled by the knowledge that all of us have profited by the extensive opportunities offered by a modern high school education.

—D. R.

Barringer, Old and New

EVERY year our parade-loving country searches high and low for a good reason to celebrate, and this year, 1935, the whole country is celebrating the founding of the first high school. We, of this younger generation, who are always anxious and willing to help, are eager to join in the fun and celebrate too, because our Alma Mater was the third high school established in the United States.

It could hardly be called an establishment in those days—just a gathering of boys, a book or two and old "Pop Hedges," that skilled master of the rod. Tradition says that he spared neither rod nor child, but just between you and me, I think he favored the rod. At any rate, the robust lads of the '50's took such abuse with a smile and lived to laugh about it later. And so the old school seemed to thrive because these ninety-one boys were eager to learn all that "Pop Hedges" knew. In this respect they surpassed both our capacity and our intentions.

But alas! They liked it so much that the little second-story schoolhouse became overcrowded, and after many heated discussions the "Common Council" (the Board of Education of the 1850's) allotted just $20,000 for a new high school building. This little two-by-four building was built on the corner of Washington and Linden Streets, and no sooner were the four walls up than three hundred and eighty-two pupils were waiting on the doorstep. That notable occurrence was on a Monday morning in January too. I guess we just can't take it.

They had the enormous number of five faculty members, but the students were thankful that there were no more, because those five did quite well when it came to work and discipline. Who of the old school could forget "Skinny Johnson," that severe math teacher who had all the propositions and theorems sung in class; and Old Man Merwin, who got his family affairs all mixed up with Caesar, and amused the students with all his troubles and arguments with his wife?

But the school itself was as funny as the faculty. I don't know where the idea came from, but the boys were jammed up on the third floor, while the girls were given free access to the first two. A good idea at that; eh, girls? And what's-more, each sex had its own street to walk on and its own door to enter. If any of these rules were broken, the offenders were flogged and beaten and shaken until their heads wobbled as if affixed to their bodies on pivots. It's interesting to know that playing hookey was a favorite pastime in those days. And we thought it was a modern idea!

They were given forty-five minutes for lunch. The boys and girls gleefully dashed to the bakery, grabbed a bun on the run, and rowed for all they were worth down the Passaic River until it was time to go back. Needless to say, it was healthier than a lot of rich food, a seat in John's and a cigarette, but we stick with our generation in that it seems like wasted energy to spend a long-anticipated lunch period rowing a clumsy boat.

As for their activities: they spent most of their energy on lessons, on baiting the teachers, and on a literary society. But if we had a course consisting of four years of Latin, three of Greek, and four of math, perhaps we should have no time for fooling. One can never tell. Perhaps that is the answer to the teacher's dream. They had daily spelling bees and a monthly composition. They had no sciences nor modern languages at all, and in mechanical drawing the boys made designs for wall paper. For the benefit of those who couldn't stand the course, the first high school had no formal graduation. They came and went as they pleased.

About this time, they again needed a new building to house the crowds, so the "Common Council" once more put on their thinking caps and scanned the countryside (for it was still country) for a suitable spot on which to build a bigger and better school. With visions of the Cathedral as a background and the park as the foreground, they selected the present site of Barringer. In 1899, after years of work, the building stood waiting with open doors. It looked huge to the students and they bubbled over with excitement when they discovered a "real big" auditorium in the building. They nowhere nearly filled it. In fact, a paper of the day said that the pupils were filled with joy at the thought of abiding five days a week in a building so well lighted and ventilated and with plenty of room. It also said, "The new building will not be enlarged, because it is held unwise to put more than 1,500 pupils under one roof." Today we have 2,500!

In 1902, the Barringer Boys played their first game of football, when a touch-down counted five and a goal one. Did those fellows look funny in their striped togs! But they had the spirit. Those were the good old days when Freshmen offered their seats to Seniors on the street cars and the girls prided themselves on the fudge in their lunchboxes. Yes, and the school prided itself on its faculty. Who could possibly forget Mr. Taylor's wit, Mr. Milwitsky, small but powerful, Chief Broadhead's voice, Mr. Sonn's cigar, and all the rest with their idiosyncrasies? We wonder whose we'll smile about in years to come.

Ah, well, times certainly do change, and the question is whether the change is for better or for worse. As for the high schools we are sure it has all been for the better. We much prefer living in 1935 with our school all grown up. Today it extends widely into all fields, influencing every walk of life. We are proud to boast of our scores of organizations, of our sports, of our cultural courses in music and art and of the practical work in science and cooking. We respect and admire a strong, capable faculty and rejoice in the thousands of students who are graduated each year with a good high school training. In short, we moderns glory in the fact that we live today.

WE WISH to make the appearance of our book an occasion for expressing our thanks to all who have helped to make our years in Barringer pleasant and interesting. We are especially indebted to several for their aid during our senior year. Mr. Landolphi has very kindly assisted at all our evening affairs. Miss Decker's class in social dancing has been, not merely enjoyable, but of the greatest benefit to us all. Miss Gray spent many hours, both afternoon and evening, coaching two of the three plays which we gave last term, and Miss Lucchina, though much occupied with extra curricular affairs, gave what time she could to help Miss Briggs with the other play. For all our dramatic efforts during the last two years, Mrs. Leitch has designed and made the costumes. Her interest in this work and her originality have made our stage effects unusual. And we shall not forget the hours that Mr. Sauer spent with his stage crew, arranging backgrounds for our famous "Evening of Plays." To these and to all of our teachers we say, "Thank you so much."

Epitome

AT LAST! We have caught up with 4A, and here we are, seniors, in mind, body, and soul, with a vocabulary which, with the years, has enlarged to an unprecedented extent. Of course, we are not ostentatiously verbose, so as to tend toward pedantry but rather are we concise and explicit, with an exact word to describe anything and everything. No, we are never prolix. The simplest word is always superlative, but of course we don't approve of mediocrity of expression. Due to our inherent delicacy, we have chosen out of our elaborate vocabulary, the word "epitome," for our epitaph. Undoubtedly there is no necessity for us to elucidate the meaning of so simple a word. Nevertheless, we should like to say that the "Epitome," summarizes our four years in high school. In common vernacular, it "hits the high spots." Or if we should adhere to our professed reputation for explicitness, we might say that we ourselves are, today, the Epitome of Barringer.

—CATHRYN JOUGHIN.

A Journal

1931

- Sept. 9—Well, here I am. There's something decidedly wrong though. Barringer doesn't seem to realize its good fortune in getting a great class. Oh, well, they'll find out.
- Sept. 15—Perhaps they're right. Although a Sophomore gave me explicit directions today on how to reach my Latin class I couldn't find the green elevator nor even a stairway to the sixth floor.
- Sept. 16—So! There aren't any elevators—not even a sixth floor! Wait till I'm a Soph.
- Oct. 5—Say, aren't these report cards small? That F is easy enough to see though, isn't it?
- Oct. 12—The first holiday from school. Always did think that Columbus was a great guy.
- Nov. 9—Discovered "John's" today.
- Nov. 10—Celebrated Armistice Day in advance by making truce with the study teacher over a cut. She accepted the explanation. Evidently cutting is easy to get away with. Must try it again soon.
- Nov. 13—Gosh, I thought the explanation was better than before. Wish they'd put cushions on that office bench.
- Dec. 19—Mr. Dann taught us "O, Come All Ye Faithful" in Latin. We've failed to learn "O, Come All Ye A's" in any language.

1932

- Jan. 17—Bought a senior year book. Don't know anybody in it!
- Jan. 31—THE day!
- Feb. 1—"Educated" frosh now. Well, anyhow most of us.
- Feb. 27—Longfellow's birthday, but nobody knows it because we don't get a holiday. I never did like poetry.
- Mar. 21—Spring is here. Fell asleep in assembly. Anthony Schroth woke me up playing "Welcome, Sweet Springtime" on his fiddle.
- Mar. 23—Barringer column of the Newark Evening News says he was playing Schubert's "Ave Maria." Student opinion on this subject seems divided. Guesses run from "Turkey in the Straw" to "Mother Machree." Tony couldn't be pinned down to a definite answer.
- Apr. 1—Was prepared for all tricks but was caught at 8:31 A. M. by the old "Your shoelace is untied," gag! Educated Freshmen, eh?
- May 10—Spring fever is getting me.

May 11—I wonder if they play hookey in high school.
 May 12—Yes, they do.
 May 13—Yes, I did.
 May 14—No, it's not worth it!
 June 17—Those Seniors hooked me with a year book again.
 June 29—Whoopee!!!

Intermission

Sept. 11—Back to school. A Soph now.
 Sept. 13—Ah, the Freshies. "Latin class, son? Sure, just turn right at the end of the corridor and take the green elevator to the sixth floor. Oh, you're welcome."

Sept. 14—That Freshie was bigger than I thought!

Oct. 1—Learned a bit of French today. Must reel off a few words to the family.

Oct. 2—Heck, they knew what I was saying.

Nov. 12—Got a D in Latin. Gee, it certainly was dumb to laugh before Mr. Taylor finished his joke. "I wasn't coached properly," he said. How does he know about those things?

Dec. 1—A fellow by the name of Hagedorn initiated his track career by escaping from an avenging angel who carried a ruler.

Dec. 19—Sandy Klawns presented us with a long awaited vacation.

Jan. 17—Another year book to add to the collection. What swindlers those Seniors are!

Feb. 1—Yeh, just by the skin of my teeth!

Mar. 21—Spring again! Schroth admits that he had his own doubts as to just what it was. All bets cancelled.

Apr. 1—Not fooled even once. 'Ray!

May 2—Soph seen smoking pipe.

May 3—Same Soph absent from school.

June 17—What, another year book? These Seniors should be shot.

June 29—Success.

Intermission

Sept. 10—Ah, a Junior.

Sept. 14—These Sophomores hazing the Freshies. How puerile, tsk! tsk!

Nov. 14—Smashing all precedent, Dorothea Ryan won the contest for editorship of the Acropolis. She becomes the first girl to hold that envied position. That automatically makes her the editor of our year book.

1934

- Jan. 3—Delegates from each home room chose Miss Briggs for class advisor. Great!
- Jan. 17—Another year book!
- Jan. 31—Ah-h-h. (A big sigh of relief.)
- Feb. 27—The class joined the ranks of the organized today, with Toby D'Andrea, president; Gloria Chen, vice-president; Violet Casale, secretary; Harold Boden, treasurer. Because of the enormity of the class (it is the largest in the history of Barringer), it was necessary to appoint an Executive Committee to assist the officers. This committee consists of the officers of each home room.
- Mar. 21—Spring, but no fiddle.

Mar. 23—Had a social today. Only class members were to be admitted as the purpose was to get acquainted, but a certain 4A English class crashed almost in toto (S-ss-ss). They had seen the lemon juice collect on Miss Briggs' desk.

May 11—Our initial effort at a big dance was this afternoon in the gym. Judging by some of the calisthenics that were alleged to be dancing, the gym was an appropriate place for the affair.

June 17—Another year book, gr-rr-rr-r.

June 29—Yes, sir!

Intermission

Sept. 9—Seniors at last.

Oct. 7—et seq. This term the class is scintillating brilliantly, not only academically, but also in extra-curricular activities. A survey showed that more members of the Acropolis staff are from the 4B class than any other. We also contribute members and officers to every other organization and athletic team in the school.

- Oct. 8—4B elections—"Archie" Boden, president; Betty Hart, vice-president; Hortense Raffaello, secretary; and Michael Siciliano, treasurer.
- Oct. 31—A female member of Room 32 won a live pig at a dance.
- Nov. 4—She is once more allowed to associate with the rest of us.

Nov. 15—Our first evening dance was a complete success, at least socially. What is more, we probably hold an all time record in that there was no crashing. What a system!

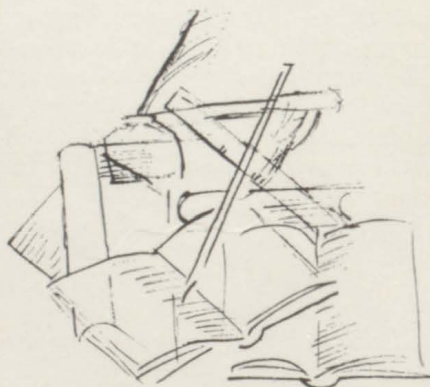

Dec. 7-8—The outstanding achievement of us 4B's to date is the ambitious theatrical endeavour, "An Evening of Plays." Three plays were presented each night, "Spreading the News," "The Copper Pot," and "The Man Who Married the Dumb Wife." During rehearsals when Mike Pompilio (playing an Irishman), forgot his lines, the dialogue was enriched with a few choice extemporaneous epithets—in Italian. Since the plays, Phil Selznick is better known as the Gr-r-eat Bowwowski. Hal—what a man—Widman brought down the house with "Woe is me." "The Man Who Married the Dumb Wife," with an all-girl cast, was so funny that the girls themselves laughed for ten minutes when it was over!

1935

- Jan. 14—That "delightful" custom known as the 4B-4A Reception, tendered by the 4B's was held tonight. The chief purpose of this function seems to be to give the graduating class a rousing send-off and to bankrupt the 4B's. The flashing trousers of our A No. 1 crasher, Roger Williams, momentarily halted all activity, but we recovered.
- Jan. 17—Hooked with another year book.
- Jan. 31—We, The Class of June, 1935, launched our final term's social activities with an afternoon dance. The music was furnished by what the advertising committee was pleased to call "The Phantom Orchestra," a phonograph and amplifier hooked up by Bill Comstock. Everyone knows that the success of the dance was due to Hal Widman's brilliant advertising scheme. For a week he has been waddling around the school with a sandwich sign announcing the affair. Clever!
- Feb. 6—4A elections—Toby D'Andrea again in the presidency with Althea Pascall, Frances Jameson and Mike Siciliano as vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively.
- Feb. 8—Definitely decided at a class meeting to have a year book. Homeroom presidents also spoke, but were forgiven.
- Feb. 28—Whoopee!! Our prayers are answered. A social dancing class! Just think of it! And taught by Miss Decker! It is one of the most popular of the extra-curricular activities and a real help. Thanks, Miss Decker.
- Mar. 21—Spring has rolled around again. Tony Schroth rendered "Welcome, Sweet Springtime" again on his fiddle in assembly. This time he played so well he didn't wake up anyone.
- Mar. 22—The Spring Dance, our prosperous termination to a series of successful social events, was held last night. What a crowd! Even the weather man co-operated.
- Mar. 25—All year-book activities in full swing. Lots of fun! Room 66 crowded and running over into the hall. The Feature Board wants a room to itself! Snooty! You'd think they would be glad to have everyone help.
- June 17—Can you imagine that? A Freshie got indignant when I tried to sell him a year book. How do they get that way?
- June 26—Graduation and—Curtain!!!!

Brain Gang Case

"I am a fugitive from a brain gang!" is the cry of Louis Di Martino. We are emphatically in favor of the stand taken by Martino and his counsels, Hillman and Pope. Robert Konove and Edwin Einbender, prosecuting attorneys, fired words through loopholes in a wall of encyclopedias at the defendant who retaliated by thrusting digs. Justices Heidinger and Elvin presided. The verdict was GUILTY.

Not only do we oppose this verdict but also do most of our readers.

"—dis verdict ain't s'hot."

—John Russoniello.

"yeah, me too."

—Evelyn (niftypuss) Arcularius.

"Really, I think this person ought to be incarcerated in a brain cell."

—Ernestine Gennell.

Mrs. Poof de Poof, the former Margaret Campbell, has just given a bit of a shindig, at which were present Mrs. Van Slink, Frances Jameson, to her readers; Mrs. de Goo, the former Marge McPartland, and the guest of honor, Miss Muriel Albers, just returned from an extensive tour, during which time she completely smote the Emperor of Sowhat with her charms, by reciting sweet poetry in his shell-pink ears.

The affair was held at the Florence Lodge, which has been newly redecorated by Helen Littell. The ladies parked their children at the Schenck Day Nursery.

Eligible males at this snippiest of snippy affairs were: Lynn Barabin, the well known young author of "I'm Tired of Thinking," and Henry Solomon, the acme of the well-dressed man about town. Mr. William Toland and Miss Audrey Dimm arrived on a bicycle built for two; Elizabeth Telfer and George Thomas charged in on a Kilocycle.

The company was kept in gales of laughter by the two famous comedians, Harold Widman and George Janick.

Dinner was prepared by Gus Heidekat, the renowned chef, famed for his aptitude for wrestling together luscious foods.

The valuables were guarded by James Burnes, noted member of the Keyhole Detective Agency.

You're the Top

You're the top,
You're a year book buyer.
You're the top,
You're an Untermeyer.
You're a book report, a Mrs. Fort, a quiz;
You're Widman's laugh, you're Miss Dow's staff, you're Toland's liz.
You're the top,
You're a Veltre photo.
You're the top,
You're a new De Soto.
I'm a Chem. Lab. stench, an office bench, a flop,
But if baby I'm the bottom you're the top.

You're the top,
You're the Athenaeum.
You're the top,
You're a Carl Feind dream.
You're a song of love from a violin by Schroth;
You're Matturri's looks, De Paolo's books, you're chicken broth.
You're the top,
You're a Drabble poem.
You're the top,
You're a "welcome home."
I'm an acrobat who's someday going to flop,
But if baby I'm the bottle you're the pop.

You're the top,
You're a Cowan "homer."
You're the top,
You're a test by Romer.
You're a thought of June, you're a song like "Love in Bloom."
You're a Steven's pun, a Visco run, you're Mr. Dumm.
You're the top,
You're a Saylor smile.
You're the top,
You're the office file.
I'm a no good poet who really ought to stop,
But if baby I'm the bottom you're the top.

You're the top,
You're a sketch by Brasile.
You're the top,
You're a Steven's facial.
You're an Adam's tune, a Ryan croon, you're right;
You're a Selznick sermon, you're Eddie Berman, you're dynamite.
You're the top,
You're a Wallace bluff.
You're the top,
You're a dress shirt cuff.
I should quit, in fact I ought to shut my trap,
But if baby I'm the beer keg you're the tap.

—PHIL BODMAN and GEORGE BENNETT.

Apologies to Cole Porter.

Irony

Plant not your foot upon
This plot of earth
Which brought upon a soul
Such everlasting peace.

I love to whistle in
This kingdom of the dead.
Sometimes I hear an echo
On a distant hill.

Lost

I lost a coin
While on my way to work.
I never found it.
Yet often when I pass the spot
I look for it
And find only disappointment.
I lost a few seconds one day—
And the same thing happened.
—GEORGE BENNETT.

Giddap

Through the dark of early dawn,
Amid the poplars, tall heads reared,
The steed sweeps on.

Across green fields once high with corn,
O'er the lea still wet with dew
We still speed on.

Across bare moors of Hades born,
As though with devils chasing close
We clatter on.
Around a bend, through roads forlorn
As sunlight from horizon's gleam
We fly right on

Till suddenly I spy a form.
Our destination near at hand
We still speed on.

And now we find our race is run
And I thank God with all my heart
My riding lesson's done.

—PHIL BODMAN.

Little Shining Eyes

by SUN PONY

Listen! do you hear that,
Little Shining Eyes?
That is Ga'ge, the Crow,
Singing as he flies.

Quick! did you see that,
Little Shining Eyes?
That was Gah, the cottontail,
Leaping in surprise.

Look! see that fluffy white,
Little Shining Eyes?
That is Kas, the cloud,
Floating across the skies.

Ho! What's this! you're crying,
Little Shining Eyes?
What! you say you're tired,
Little Shining Eyes?

The Night Chant

by SUN PONY

As the white snow reflects the moonlight,
The beams of which flood the earth,
Where the blue night meets the white hill,
Where the Winter Star meets the white hill,
O howling she-wolf
With the cry that curdles men's blood

—I do not fear you.

Hungrily all packmates wait—

Hungrily all scavengers wait—

Hungrily all vultures wait—

—for you to take up the hunting trail.

Fearfully the great moose—

Fearfully the great buffalo—

Fearfully the timid elk—

Fearfully the timid deer—

Fearfully the owl—

Fearfully the hawk—

Fearfully the rabbits—

Fearfully all men—

—will regard you

In the firelight I sit

With firelight before me—

With firelight behind me—

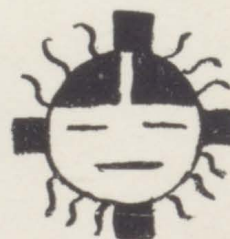

With firelight above me—

With firelight all around me—

—I sit

I am safe in the firelight

I am safe in the firelight.

A buzzing sound arises from the classroom
As from a bee in flight.

The pupil, staring out the window,
Jumps, when the teacher calls him.

There are many artists who limit their drawings
To teachers' pictures.

Electric lamps, hanging low,
Are very good targets for erasers.

RUTH CAMPBELL

The signs of age, of school life, a page
Carved deep in the top of the desk.

ETHEL DEBNAM

I threw a snowball at the moon—
The wind pounced on it
And blew it in my face
In a shining silver mist.
Laughing wind—were you in league
With the moon?

Down among the lilies, there the stream goes tripping,
Through the stones a-sliding, over mossy pebbles slipping.
Laughing at the elm trees that, solemn, mock its skipping,
Washing cool the fingers of the dipping willow tree,
Flowing through the shadows with a sombre aspect chill,
Winking at the sun at its own audacious will,
Whirling twigs and scarlet leaves in patterns never still,
Singing, ever singing brook—thou art chained, and thou art free!

"Is nothing mine?"

I stand at the window, dully staring.
My heart aches with the burden
Of wanting what I cannot have.

"In all this world, is nothing mine?"

A sightless man goes tapping down the street,
In the dark void of blindness.

"Blue sky and yellow leaves—
These, then, are mine."

Right foot
And left foot
And swoop now and sway.
Color
And music—
Let's dance now away;
Singing
And swinging
To melody gay!

One night we took a walk,
The four of us.
Those two lingered,
So we darted ahead,
The two of us.
We ran and skipped,
Light footed,
Light hearted.
We saw a street light
And called it the moon.
Oh, beautiful, beautiful moon,
We laughed.
We hid in a dark alley,
Laughing, breathless.
Are they coming?
Quick, hide! Be quick!
They pass, We follow them, tiptoeing.
They whirl about—
And mock at us!
We saw you!
We saw you go into the alley!
Did you kiss her?
Did you?
Did you?

I am disgusted,
I am ashamed.
Mocking, mocking,
The thoughts in your minds,
Your accusing, grinning faces.
May I not run and laugh
Because I run?
Skip, and laugh
For the joy of skipping?

Stranger Things Have Happened

My hero would be tall and blond
And his gray eyes to me alone would turn.
I would not need to speak aloud
For he could fathom through my silence.—
Why then did I fall in love
With a red-haired backslapper
Who has dirty fingernails and calls me "kid?"

Czigany

Bittersweet strains from Gypsy violins;
Wilder grows the voice of the singer;
The dancing feet tread faster;
A couple look knowingly into each other's eyes,
And the old man by the fire has tears on his cheek.

As So Often Happens

I cast my ideals overboard
I did not find them satisfying.
I tried a bit of worldliness
And this?—was, oh so boring.

Spectator at a Chinese Festival

A writhing dragon weaves through the crowd;
Bright banners wave overhead;
Firecrackers sizzle;
Yellow children shout American slang;
All this gives me a headache
But to these people it is a rare treat
And what care they for my opinion?

Fatal Glance

I took one quick look,
"This is love," I said—
But, alas, I looked a second time
And he turned into just another man.

Debt

When I was six
I gave my heart
To a white teddy bear
Behind a bright shop window.
But he was not for me.
Now my childhood
Belongs to time long past,
And I play with adults' toys.
Yet no matter how many toys Life brings
It will always owe me
One white teddy bear.

To, L. M. B.

Oh, remember those days in 66
When your head felt as heavy as Mason Bricks;
And from sleepless nights your eyes were red,
For you never really "got to bed;"
And Ryan and Barrett and Einbender, too,
Would be always telling you what to do.
Then someone would holler, "What do you mean?"
And again you'd explain so it could be seen;
Then in would trot Thomas, and Veltre, and I
Till the noise grew so maddening
We'd all hear you cry:—
"If you're not working, I wish you'd get out,
Please do it right now, so I won't have to shout."
All would be quiet but just for awhile,
'Cause ten minutes later you'd look up and smile.
The boys would be roaring
As loud as they could.
Then you'd sit down murm'ring,
"What is the good?"

Oh, remember the time of the 4B Plays,
When you hurried and bustled for days and for days,
And the voice of an actress was too high or too low,
And you'd have to work on it to get it just so.
At last they were given.
You'd earned a recess,
And, if I can remember, they were a success.
And do you remember when we all were blue,
Because it was over, and we knew we were through?
Remember that evening when with tears in your eyes
You heard all those vibrant and touching good-byes?
But though we shall ever miss all of your charm
Which pointed a way that was free from all harm,
We shall show in our living from this day henceforth
The things that you taught us of value and worth.

—GEORGE H. BENNETT.

Over many a city old,
Famed in song and story,
Temple gray and castle hold
Catch the sunset glory.
So our Alma Mater proud
Looks o'er vale and meadow
High between the sailing cloud
And its drifting shadow.

For her colors, first the blue
Of the April valley;
Then December's wintry hue
When the storm winds rally.
Newark High, thy fame we raise,
Many voices blending
Through the years we pledge thee praise,
Loyal to life's ending.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE PRINTERS

THE ART OF PRINTING

The invention of printing from movable types, made in Holland near the middle of the fifteenth century, was the most significant invention of civilized man. The priceless jewel of knowledge, which for centuries could be the possession of only a privileged few, was made available to all by the development of printing. During the last five centuries printing has progressed not only as the spreader and preserver of knowledge and culture, but also as the finest of the graphic arts.

We take pride in turning out artistic printing. Our plant represents the last word in modern equipment, skillful craftsmanship, and dependable service.

You regard your yearbook as the reflection of your school; we regard it as a sample of the art of printing.

Our specialty is distinctive printing that both you and we can be proud of.
